

Being Lost

Following winds without a compass, fear and tension coil in my skeleton taking the place of muscles. They adduct, explore at night. Trusting my little spirit without the backpack of memory, I seem to progress against the wind.